

Whimsies.

Your future is being made now.

Tell the truth and shame the family.

Mind the pennies and your son will spend the dollars.

Of the two evils choose the one least likely to be found out.

One dimple carries more conviction than a dozen diatribes.

A chauffeur may be described as a man who takes life easily.

Society has always a generous "Come in" for a generous income.

Riches have wings. Hence the multitude of millionaire aviators.

It is easy to love your neighbor as yourself if she is prettily.

The ocean is inevitably treacherous, being always full of craft.

Many a woman has drowned her honor in the pure water of an enormous solitaire.

Things Look Good.

Party primaries were held in several states yesterday and the results in them all was to lend comfort to the Democrats, for it showed that the Republicans are split.

In Washington, Miles Poindexter, Insurgent Republican, has won a sweeping victory for Senator over all his opponents, running ahead of them even in their own home counties.

In South Carolina, C. L. Blease, local option candidate for Governor, seems to have been nominated over C. C. Featherbone, who favors state wide prohibition.

The liquor question also played a part in the Democratic convention in Delaware and the wets won nominating their candidate for Congress.

In New Jersey, where both parties held a primary, the returns show that Dr. Woodrow Wilson will be nominated for Governor on the first ballot. The Republicans probably have nominated Gov. Stokes for Senator.

In New York, where primaries were held to send delegates to the Republican state convention there was about an equal division between the Old Guard and Roosevelt showing that the fight in the convention will be a sharp one.

Sunday Sickness.

The disease Sunday sickness, is a disease peculiar to church members. The attack comes on suddenly every Sunday, no symptoms are felt on Saturday night; the patient sleeps well, eats a hearty breakfast, but about church time the attack comes on, and continues till services are over for the morning.

Then the patient feels easy, and eats a hearty dinner. In the afternoon he feels much better and able to take a walk, talk about politics and read Sunday papers; he eats a hearty supper, but about church time he gets another attack and stays at home. He retires early, sleeps well, and wakes Monday morning refreshed and able to go to work, and does not have any symptoms of the disease until the following Sunday. The peculiar features are as follows:

It always attacks members of the church.

It never makes its appearance except on the Sabbath.

The symptoms vary, but never interfere with sleep or appetite.

It never lasts more than twenty-four hours.

It generally attacks the head of the family.

No physician is ever called.

It always proves fatal in the end to souls.

No remedy is known for it except prayer.

Religion is the only antidote.

It is becoming fearfully prevalent, and is sweeping thousands every year to destruction.

The remedy: On Sunday morning arise at seven, use plenty of cold water on the face, eat a plain breakfast, then mix up and take internally a dose composed of equal parts of the following ingredients: Will, push, energy, determination, self-respect, respect for God's day, respect for God's house, respect for God's Book; stir well, add a degree of love just to make it sweet. Take a dose every few minutes before church time unless relief comes sooner. If the day is stormy an external application of overshoes, heavy coat, and umbrellas will be beneficial.—A citizen.

The Lash of a Friend.

would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung-racking cough that defied all remedies for years. "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me till I used Dr. King's New Discovery which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merit for stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhage, croup, whooping cough, or hayfever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. It's positively guaranteed by Paul Drug Co.

Pig Notes.

The injurious effects of feeding a ration of corn may be overcome by feeding skim milk.

Some people have an idea that a thin hog is a bacon hog. It is not, but the pig that is well grown on a nitrogenous ration, and that is nice and sleek but not fat is the type that tops the market every time.

While feeding mill feed always make the slop thick. Thin slop are not conducive to good results.

Young pigs should be sprayed or dipped freely to keep them free from parasites and skin diseases.

The main object in the few first months of the pig's life is to give him plenty of bone, muscle and growth. Sort get him conditioned to carry a big load of corn to market.

Dispense with the old sour swill barrel. It is a disgrace on the modern farm. Even pigs do not relish old, musty, sour swill.

Young pigs that have no pasture should be fed three times a day, for nothing injures a young animal more than two or three hours of anxious waiting for its feed.

Early maturity lessens the risk from disease.

Lean, lank hogs and poor fences will discourage almost any farmer who has such a combination.

A Man of Iron Nerve.

Indomitable will and tremendous energy are never found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills, the matchless regulators, for keen brain and strong body. 25c. at Paul Drug Co.

HELPING HUMANITY.

Father and Son Viewed Conditions From Opposite Standpoints.

Twenty years ago, says the Chicago Advance, a discouraged young doctor in a large city was visited once by his old father, who came up from a rural district to look after his boy.

"Well, son," he said, "how are you getting along?"

"I'm not getting along at all," was the disheartened reply. "I'm not doing a thing."

The old man's countenance fell, but he spoke of courage and patience and perseverance. Later in the day he went with his son to the free dispensary, where the young doctor had an unsalaried position and where he spent an hour or more every day. The father sat by, a silent but intensely interested spectator, while twenty-five poor unfortunates received help. The doctor forgot his visitor while he bent his skilled energies to the task, but hardly had the door closed on the last patient when the old man burst forth: "I thought you told me that you were not doing anything! Why, if I had helped twenty-five people in a month as much as you have in one morning I would thank God my life counted for something."

"There isn't any money in it, though," explained the son, somewhat abashed. "Money!" the old man shouted, still scornfully. "Money! What is money in comparison with being of use to your fellow men? Never mind about money. You go right along at this work every day. I'll go back to the farm and gladly earn money enough to support you as long as I live—yes, and sleep sound every night with the thought that I have helped you to help your fellow men."

SHREWD VICTOR HUGO.

Quiet Way in Which He Bullied the Theatrical Managers.

Here are the methods which Dumas the elder and Victor Hugo employed when they had a new play to offer to the theater. Dumas would write to the director of the Porte St. Martin: My Dear Friend—I shall bring you on Monday a play in five acts. I shall need Mlle. Georges, Mme. Dorval, Bocage, Lockroy, Provost and five new scenes.

This extravagance would alarm the director, who would put off the production of the play till better days.

Then Victor Hugo would appear and shyly draw a manuscript out of his pocket. He would agree to everything. The stock company would play his piece admirably, since all he wanted was a good ensemble; no new decorations would be needed nor any change at all.

So the piece would be read, and as the roles were distributed Hugo would say musingly, "Dieu, how fine Frederick would be in that part!" "That is true," Horel would murmur, and a few days after he would announce that Frederick was engaged. Hugo would then remonstrate that this destroyed the equipoise of the cast, and Rancourt, Laferrere and Mlle. Georges would be engaged. Then Hugo would attack the stage setting. Old scenes that the public had tired of were almost an insult to these great artists. If Horel showed reluctance at this, Hugo would threaten to withdraw his piece. And so the game would go on till, little by little, Hugo had obtained everything he wanted, even to the changing of the paper hangings in the stage boxes.

Australia's Stony Desert.

The great stony desert of north Australia was discovered by Captain Sturt, an Australian explorer, in 1845-6. It is north of the river Darling and is about 300 miles long and 100 broad, consisting of sandy dunes or ridges. Its want of trees, except along the creeks, gives the country a sterile appearance. These ridges were probably formed by the joint effect of winds and a gradually retreating sea. According to Captain Sturt, these waters were gradually lost by evaporation or carried to some undiscovered sea. The only vegetation, growing scantily, is prickly acacias in full bloom, all of stunted growth. Water is scarce except in the creeks which are sheltered, and this is generally brackish. Few travelers care to traverse this inhospitable desert.

A Quick Lie.

Presence of mind recently saved an eminent actor his gold watch and chain. While crossing a bridge in a thick night mist a suspicious looking man suddenly loomed up out of the obscurity.

"Can you tell me the time, gov'nor?" he gruffly inquired.

"You are too late, my dear sir," replied the actor suavely. "A gentleman who passed a minute ago stole my watch!"—Exchange.

The Aftermath.

Mrs. DuPuy—I was so surprised to hear that Edith and Mr. Sissingham were married. You know they always used to claim their attachment was merely platonic. Mrs. Kolkremes—Yes, I remember. But now, I fear, they wouldn't claim it was even that.—Lippincott's.

Exercise.

Walking, we are told, is a good exercise—better than riding in an automobile. The trouble is that a great many of us are not looking for exercise.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Forecast.

Jones—What do you think will be the end of the woman question? Brown—There won't be any end. They'll always be asking 'em.

Frank's undeserved satire in disguise.—Broadhurst.

A Kiss.

A learned gentleman in this section who has given much of his time to the study of human nature and other important and unimportant subjects has been asked to define a kiss and we print below a series of definitions; and is you want to know, you can take your choice without.

A kiss, he says, is:

To a bashful man the acme of agony.

Woman's passport to her husband's purse.

The poorest mothers' richest gift.

The safety valve of exuberant feeling.

Nature's Volapuk.

The drop that causes the cup of love to overflow.

A two-faced action that meets with mutual approval.

Cupid's sealing wax.

It's like the wind that blows—felt but not seen.

That in which two heads are better than one.

Two orbiculars in a state of contraction and in anatomical juxtaposition.

Cupid's cruising smack.

Printing without ink, no proof sheets wanted.

Report at headquarters.

The sounding system used by the operator in sending a telegram to the heart.

The sweetest fruit on the tree of love.

The best tincture in the household medicine cupboard.

Love's most ecstatic expression and sorrow's sweetest balm.

A woman's most effective argument.

The striking of a love match.

A thing that cannot be taken without giving, and cannot be given without taking.

A universal plaster that heals all wounds given in thoughtless tiffs.

Enlargement of the heart, the symptom of which is contraction of the mouth.

A "stick" of matter—two "heads" and an application.

Much prized by two—of use to no one.

The dew on the flower of love.

The electric motor that sends the trolley of love to the Recorder's office.

The soul's plenipotentiary.

It Saved His Leg.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swensen, of Watertown, Wis. Ten years of eczema, that 15 doctors would not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it, sound and well." In fallible for Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils, Fever Sores, Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Piles. 25c. at Paul Drug Co.
